

Bay Choral Guild Guidelines

Revised November, 2014

Bay Choral Guild is dedicated to excellence in musical performance. Membership in the chorus is a commitment as well as a privilege and a pleasure. These guidelines represent part of that commitment.

Responsibilities of Membership

A chorister's fundamental responsibility is to work with the artistic director and fellow choristers to make music.

Attendance is expected at all rehearsals, including workshops and sectionals. Singers are ordinarily expected to participate in all three quarters (concert sets) of a concert season.

Absences from regular rehearsals: It is essential that you give notice, as far in advance as possible, of any foreseeable absence or lateness, and that you promptly explain any unforeseen absence. See the list of whom to notify at the end of these guidelines. If you miss a rehearsal, you are responsible for getting the rehearsal markings and putting them in your score. Markings are posted regularly on the web (currently in the "About Us/Chorister Resources" section of the BCG web site).

Absences in concert week: If you know at the start of a quarter that you will have to miss a dress rehearsal or concert, you must get the approval of Artistic Director, in order to sing that quarter. Absence from dress rehearsals or concerts without prior approval is normally excused only in the case of illness.

Leaves of absence: If you cannot sing for a particular quarter, you may ask the artistic director for a leave of absence. You will be readmitted the following quarter without an audition.

Dues and music: It takes money to handle operational and program expenses. Your financial support is essential. Membership dues are $125 a quarter, payable at the first rehearsal of the quarter. If you are planning to sing all three quarters and it is practical for you to do so, we encourage you to pay the full year's dues ($375) at the beginning of the fall quarter in order to help with cash flow for the chorus. You must also buy your music, typically for $20 to $30 a quarter, also payable at the first rehearsal. You will not be allowed to take music home from rehearsals until you have paid in full. In special circumstances, see Wendy Bartlett to arrange for late or partial payment. It is best to make such arrangements before the start of the quarter so that you can take your music home right away. A prorated refund on dues is available if you leave before the fourth rehearsal in the quarter. You cannot return your music for a refund unless there is a shortage and it can be resold to another chorister. If you need a partial or full scholarship in order to be able to sing with the chorus, speak to Wendy.

In rehearsal:

- Be on time and take part in the warm-up even if you have warmed up your voice beforehand. The focus of many warm-up exercises is on the ensemble sound. Your participation helps the whole group.
- Bring a pencil to mark whatever breaths, cut-offs, phrasing, dynamics, and so on that the director gives. Review the markings, which are updated regularly and posted by Bill van Melle on the Bay Choral Guild website under Chorister Resources, and add any markings you may have missed. And then, of course, observe the markings. Pay attention. When singing, watch the director and listen to the rest of the group. When nobody is singing, keep your pencil ready and listen to the director. Do not talk to your neighbor or focus on something else (such as your cell phone or PDA) when others are singing or the director is speaking.
- Turn your phone off or put it in airplane mode during rehearsal. Check messages and take calls only during the break. Singular exception: If you are a medical professional who is "on call" during a specific rehearsal, your phone/pager should be in vibrator mode and you should quietly leave the rehearsal area to respond.

- Ask questions and make suggestions appropriately. If immediate attention is needed, raise your hand. Some questions are better kept until the break or until after the rehearsal. For complex questions or suggestions, you are encouraged to email or phone the artistic director outside of rehearsal. Checking email regularly and reading the handouts can help you avoid asking questions that have already been answered. If something on a handout is not clear, it is generally best to ask about it before the rehearsal, not in rehearsal.
- Avoid all scents and perfumes during rehearsals and performances. They can make it impossible for fellow choristers with allergies to sing.

Home study: Learn your part at home, and drill any difficult passages to work them into your voice. Rehearsal time is primarily for working on tuning, ensemble sound, and musical interpretation, not for teaching each part its lines. Practice CDs usually are available at or near the start of the quarter for a nominal cost. For some pieces, they may also be MIDI posted on our website that emphasize your part.

Performance checks: Choristers who miss three or more rehearsals in a quarter or are late to four or more are subject to a performance check. The artistic director will notify singers with poor attendance of the date and time. Checks are typically held at the last rehearsal before the dress rehearsals. A singer who will be absent that day is responsible for making alternative arrangements. In a performance check, a chorister must demonstrate facility with the music, singing alone or in a small group, to be allowed to continue. This requirement may be waived if the director has determined from rehearsals that a chorister does know the music well.

Email and web postings: Many kinds of information are communicated electronically, including

- the director's plan for the next rehearsal
- voicing charts detailing who sings which lines
- rehearsal calendars
- chorus rosters
- pronunciation guides and translations for foreign texts
- standing charts for the concert venues
- materials for publicizing concerts
- requests to assist with BCG receptions, concert set-up, and other activities and responsibilities
- announcements of BCG social events (e.g., hikes)

We communicate through the GuildGuild group on Yahoo, and expect you to join GuildGuild as soon as possible. You usually are expected to print your own copies of handouts that are distributed as files attached to an email message or as postings on the GuildGuild web site. Links to newly posted handouts are sent out via email. When you receive an email message or a handout with markings for the music, mark your score before the next rehearsal. You may receive some printed handouts in rehearsal, especially if they were not ready until the day of the rehearsal.

Ticket sales: The singers are the best promotional tool the chorus has. The majority of ticket sales come from you. The chorus ticket coordinator will give you concert tickets to sell and collect the funds from your sales. Please try to sell at least five tickets for each program. You are also encouraged to sell subscriptions at the beginning of the season. You may sell tickets to friends and family of any age at the discounted rate for seniors. You also will have the opportunity to give a limited number of complimentary tickets to new audience members. To promote the concerts, you will be asked to circulate flyers, posters, and email messages.

Volunteering: BCG is a volunteer-run organization with the exception of the artistic director and a part-time bookkeeper, and day-to-day operations are led by the task leaders, whose names are listed below. Volunteer support – in time, money, or both – is both an opportunity and a responsibility of every chorister. Meetings of the whole chorus are held periodically and announced at rehearsals and on GuildGuild. All choristers are encouraged to attend meetings and get involved. Do not wait until the next meeting to volunteer for a specific task; just contact the task leader if you are interested in helping out in their area, or let the Board President know that you are willing to help and she will try to match you with a task. Meetings of the BCG Board of Directors are held on the third Monday of every month prior to the rehearsal, with an extended Board "Retreat" meeting held annually in May/June. We also welcome help from your family and friends, particularly for tasks that choristers are unable to carry out such as ushering, working in the box office for concerts, and concert set-up and take-down.

Rehearsals and Workshops

At the start of a season, a complete rehearsal schedule showing dates, times, and venues is posted on the GuildGuild and BCG web site, www.baychoralguild.org, along with directions to all the venues.

Regular rehearsals are held weekly in Palo Alto on Monday evenings starting at 7:30.

Workshops usually are scheduled once each quarter, on a Saturday. The goals of an all-day workshop are to spend concentrated time working on the music, develop vocal technique, improve ensemble and sectional sound, and build our community. Workshops are an important part of the preparation for each concert and are not considered optional.

Dress rehearsals are held in the concert venues during the last weeks of a quarter. Wear your concert shoes or ones with similar heels so that sight lines can be checked, but there is no need to wear the rest of your concert outfit. Put your music into a black concert binder to get used to holding it that way.

Concert warm-ups are held 90 minutes before concert time to prepare the chorus vocally, musically, and psychologically. Like the other rehearsals, they are mandatory. Arrive on time.

Concert Dress

Men: Tuxedo (preferred) or black suit. White shirt with a plain or pleated front and no ruffles. Black bow tie, socks, and dress shoes. Women: Chorus-issue, custom-fitted black velvet tunic – see Carol Buchholz to get measured. Dressy, black (opaque), full-length (to the ankle) skirt or loose pants. Black or neutral hose. Black dress shoes. No purses, shawls, or other accoutrements on stage.

Everyone: “Black” means solid black, not dark grey or navy blue. White means white, not ecru, beige, cream, or off-white. Jewelry must not be large, sparkly, or colorful enough to attract the audience’s attention or reflect light if photographed. Avoid scents: no perfume, aftershave, or cologne, no scented mousse, hair spray, or soap, and no BO or garlic, onion, tobacco, or alcohol on the breath.

Music must be in black folders or black covers.

Concert Deportment

If you bring people with you, ask them to wait in the lobby or elsewhere during the warm-up. Audience members are not permitted in the house until the doors are opened to the public.

Pay attention to the instructions for getting on and off the stage and avoid unnecessary discussion. If you are not a row leader or designated sitter, just follow the singer next to you. The order of leaving is generally the exact reverse of the entrance.

Entering and leaving, carry your music in the hand away from the audience.

During the concert, keep your focus on the music and the director whether you are singing at the moment or not. Your face and body language show that you are engaged with the performance. That, in turn, engages the audience. Similarly, avoid extraneous noise or movement during the music as it will distract the audience.

Do not lift and open your music until the conductor signals you to do so, and stay with the music until it is truly stopped. Do not anticipate the end of a piece or a movement by turning the page or rearranging your music. The conductor will signal the end.

When making a page turn in a quiet passage, mark your score to not turn the page in time with the music. Turn the page early, or else delay the turn if you do not sing at the start of the next page or have memorized that music.

When standing through a long solo, hold your music at your side. When sitting through a solo, you may keep your music open, but do not page along with the soloist. Turn immediately to your next entrance or the standing cue. You may page along in dress rehearsals, however.

Accept the applause for your performance with a smile. You may acknowledge the conductor, soloists and instrumentalists, but do so with decorum.

When filing out after the performance, do not break ranks to join your friends. Continue with the chorus all the way out of the hall.

Auditions

New members: New member auditions are held by appointment at the beginning of each quarter and may also be held at other times as needed. An applicant must ordinarily commit to a full season. The audition is for the artistic director to get to know the applicant's voice, decide whether it meets the standards of the chorus, and determine where to place the singer (for example, first or second alto).

Returning members: Former members who return after an extended absence will be auditioned in the same way as new members. Readmission will depend on the condition of the voice and on current vacancies. The artistic director may choose to waive this requirement.

Continuing members: New members typically are auditioned again after their first season. In some years, the Artistic Director may decide to hold chorister evaluations for all singers at the end of a season. The format could be a group audition using repertoire from the season or could be like the auditions for new members. Although a singer can be asked to leave as a result of such an evaluation, the primary intent is for the artistic director to stay familiar with all the voices in the chorus, discuss areas in need of improvement, and urge those who should improve their voices to take lessons.

Solo and Small-Group Auditions

The artistic director may assign a vocal solo or a small ensemble in any of the following ways.

- Hire a professional soloist from outside the chorus when that is appropriate.
- Select particular choristers without an audition when the director feels that certain voices are the right ones in terms of vocal timbre and musicality.
- Ask more than one chorister to audition for the same solo.
- Open up auditions to the entire chorus.

Audition dates: The director will give clear dates by which choristers must be ready to audition and when auditions will be cut off. Because it is important that the selected soloists have time to prepare fully for performance, it may not be possible to delay auditions for individual candidates who are absent or ill.

Audition process: The director may conduct open auditions privately, with all candidates on hand so that voices can be balanced and matched, or in the context of a choral rehearsal. The results of open auditions will be announced only after all candidates have been heard and will not ordinarily be given on the day of the audition.

Feedback: If not selected, please do not be disappointed or angry. If you are not chosen the first time you audition, the director has at least heard you and will be thinking of you for future solos. If you want feedback about your audition, please talk to the director privately.

BCG Contact Information

Mail: P.O. Box 597, Los Altos 94023

Web: info@baychoralguild.org

Phone: none

BCG Board of Directors

Sandra Wilson (President) 650-218-0363

Steve Kispersky (Secretary and Treasurer) 408-741-1947

Sanford Dole

Christine Doyle

Kim McCall

[vacant]

[vacant]

BCG Task Leaders

All choristers are encouraged to volunteer for BCG core functions and activities. Task leaders include:

Quarter start-up (dues, registration, music, etc.) - Wendy Bartlett

Roster – Christine Doyle

Schedule and auditions – Loretta Guarino Reid

Music librarian – Wendy Bartlett

Rehearsal CDs, score markings, etc. – Bill van Melle

Webmaster – Bill van Melle

Performance venue coordination – Steve Kispersky (Campbell UMC), Sandra Wilson (First Baptist Church of Palo Alto and St. Gregory of Nyssa, San Francisco)

Rehearsal venue coordination – Sandra Wilson,, Steve Kispersky

Juice and snacks – Karen Hohner

Workshop refreshments – [open]

Other operations – Wendy Bartlett

Guild Guild moderators – Brian Steen, Wendy Bartlett, Bill van Melle

The Riser Team (venue set-up/take-down) – Brian Steen

Public relations – Mary Holzer and the intrepid PR team

Chorus ticket sales – Pat Ho

Concert program production – Karen Hohner

Box office and front of house – Wendy Bartlett

Social activities – Steve Kispersky

Fund raising – Christine Doyle, Steve Kispersky

Notification of Absences

Artistic Director, Sanford Dole

sanford@baychoralguild.org